NUMBER 34.

Says "Teddy" Must Apologize.

Dr. William J. Long, of Stanford, Conn., has made public a letter sent by him to President Roosevelt. The letter says in part:

"The issue between you and me is no longer one of animals but of men. It is not chiefly a matter of national hostility of truth and personal honor. In a recent magazine article you deliberately attacked me as well as my book. You have used the enormous influence of your position to discredit me as a man, to injure my reputation, and incidentally to make a poor man even poorer by destroying, if possible, the sale and influence of his works."

"In my books I have given the result of long years of watching animals in the wilderness, with no other object than to study their habits and as far as man can, to understand the mystery of their dumb life."

"In every preface I have stated, and I now repeat the statement, that every incident I have recorded from my own observation is true as far as an honest man can see and understand the truth. In your recent attack this is what you chiefly deny. I have spoken the truth and you accuse me of deliberate falsehood and misrepresentation."

"As President of the United States you have gone out of your way publicly to injure the private citizen who was attending strictly to his own business, and a man whose ideals of truth and honor are quite as high as your own. This is the whole issue between us. I meet it squarely and so must you. If I have spoken falsely; if in book or work of mine, I have intentionally deceived any child or man regarding animal life, I promise publicly to retract every such word and never to write another animal book."

"On the other hand, if I show to any disinterested person that you have accused me falsely, you must publicly withdraw your accusation and apologize. As a man and as President no other honorable course is open to you. You base your recent charges chiefly on the matter of a big white wolf killing a young caribou by a bite in the chest, described by me in 'Northern Trails.'"

Queer Facts.

At Sharpsburg, while tearing down an old brick house in the Spencer neighborhood, workmen found a brick with two pig's feet imbedded in it. The house was built a hundred years ago. At Lexington, while tearing down the foundation of the Navarre Club building in that city, Henry Jackson, a laborer, released a live toad that is believed to have been entombed in the masonry for twenty years.

The Right Plan.

A farmer in Illinois says he has adopted a plan of advertising in his home paper which has saved much valuable time and brought handsome returns to the money invested. He says: "When I am ready to sell my stuff I insert a little advertisement in the local paper telling what I have to sell, and, if live stock, how many head of each and when they will be ready to ship, and the result has been the buyers are right after me, either personally or by mail, and naturally I always get the highest market price. If I want to buy a cow, a steer, a horse, or a dozen of each, I insert a little advertisement that costs maybe 30 or 40 cents, and instead of traveling over the country inquiring of my neighbors who have this or that for sale, the home news does it for me at less expense and those who have what I want manage to let me know it some way."

Blacksmithing And Wood Work.

The people of Bourbon are invited to give the undersigned a call when in need of first-class blacksmithing, horse-shoeing and woodwork of all kinds.

Stole the Wrong Animals.

In the Fayette county Circuit Court a white man was tried for stealing thirty cattle. He was convicted and sent to the penitentiary for one year. A negro boy, who heard the testimony in this trial and the verdict, was then tried for stealing a hog. The jury gave him three years in the penitentiary. Asked if he had any remarks to make, he replied: "Wisht I'd er stole them cattle."

Cleanliness.

Use a gas range and enjoy the hours you have been spending cleaning up after a coal stove. 31-2t

A Dog is Property.

A Jessamine county man has brought suit against the L. & A. Railroad for one hundred dollars for killing his dog. He claims that he pays one dollar tax on his dog, which is the same as he pays on one hundred dollars worth of other property and hence his dog should be valued at that sum.

Cure for Neuralgia.

If you have neuralgia real bad try the nutmeg cure. Just get an ordinary nutmeg and attach a string to it and wear it around your neck. One man who is subject to severe attacks of this severest of all pains says it cures him every time. When neuralgia attacks him he hunts up a nutmeg, and invariably is soon free from the pain. An old negro woman in the South first told him about it. He has asked doctors about it, but they can't explain it.

Be On Time.

The bids will be opened at the Dutch Auction on Saturday, June 8 at 2 o'clock. All persons having put in sealed bids must be present or the next bid will be accepted. If you haven't put in one today is the time.

A. F. WHEELER & CO. 31-1f

Look Out For 'Em.

Hotel keepers, merchants and other advertisers should look out for fake "ad" agents about this time of the year. A number of new "skin" games are being worked in different parts of the State by those fellows who find easy victims among men who have not studied the science of advertising and who are prone to doubt the honesty of a home man, but trust the smooth-tongued fakir.

Stop Paying Rent.

The Bourbon Building and Loan Association will positively begin business Saturday at 7 o'clock p. m. See Roy Clendenin and subscribe for stock. We will loan you money to buy or build a home. Hours of payment 7 to 9 p. m. 31-1f

Can't Hurt a Boy.

The five-year-old son of Kate Karti-nelli fell out of a car window of an Illinois Central limited west bound train running at fifty miles an hour Friday night between Peosta and Epworth, Ia., while his mother was asleep. The child was found walking on the tracks at 5 o'clock the next morning by the train crew of an east bound train. Except for a slight cut on the face the boy was unhurt.

Make A Bid Today.

Bid on the handsome refrigerator at Wheeler's today. The Dutch auction will close at 2 p. m. on June 8 and the person having the highest bid will get the refrigerator. 31-1f

There is Ordinance Against It.

The playing of baseball on the public square by whites and negro boys mixed will be stopped when some large window is broken out, which has come near being done on several occasions recently.

A Well-Dressed Man

Is always a pleasant sight and generally gets the "second look." Clothes do not make the man, but they are a pretty good indication of his worth, for they reflect his respect for himself and the men he associates with. No man can over-rate the value of being well dressed. Correctness in one's attire marks the man of thought and many a man owes his success to his appearance.

MESSAGE TO DEMOCRATS."United We Stand Devided We Fall,"

A message has just been delivered to the Democracy that is worthy of the most careful consideration of the members of the party. The message is from Senator Isidor Rayner, who represents Maryland in the United States Senate. As Maryland is one of the states that it is necessary for the democrats to carry to win the next election, this message of advice from the most distinguished son on the course the party should pursue is the more worthy of attention.

"Of course," said Rayner, "we all appreciate the fact that when a new issue arises the Democratic party must take its stand upon one side or the other, and as new issues develop parties must enlarge and expand. No one desires to restrict the Democratic party either to a dead issue or simply to those that existed at the time of its formation.

"Now, have we any principles? I think we have. Has the Republican party stolen them? I acquit them of the charge. I think that they are entirely innocent, and I do not believe that they have any felonious intent or design whatever to appropriate them. Is the President a Democrat? I most respectfully deny it." Senator Rayner after showing the lines that divide the two parties, said: "We must not yield the slight fraction of the supremacy of the States over their own local and domestic concerns. This is our heritage, and we must not barter it for wealth, progress or prosperity. Prosperity may be only temporary, but the foundations of the republic are perpetual.

"In the next place, we are opposed to government paternalism. It is a reproach to Jefferson to claim that if he were living he would be in favor of it. I predict, with great respect to others who may differ with me, that the day will never come when the Government of the United States will own and operate the railroads of the country.

"Let us give the present Railroad law a fair test and trial, and if it does not answer the purposes of its enactment let us extend its provisions and supplement its remedies so that it will meet any emergency that may arise. There is one proposition, however, that the Democratic party must contend for in this connection, and that is it must demand a complete obedience to the existing statute. The railroad presidents and officers of our trunk lines must be made, once and forever, to realize that they are the servants, and not the masters, of the people."

After suggesting a platform upon which all Democrats could unite Senator Rayner closed by saying: "If we advocate principles that are not Democratic and be again defeated at the polls, then it looks to me as if the hour of disintegration was at hand, because the only thing that has kept us alive through all the strange vicissitudes of our fortune is the fact that we have never yet wholly abandoned the historic traditions of our faith and have never yet, upon all the pages of our history, sounded a final retreat.

"If the Democratic party will only follow Jeffersonian precepts and axioms without attempting a revised edition that he would repudiate if he were living; if it will only unite upon essentials and not divide upon non-essentials; if it will only stand by the old ritual and not attempt to alter it to suit every economic clique or mongrel denomination that is willing to array itself under banners; if it will only abandon the worship of temporary idols that are broken into fragments with the close of every campaign, and return to the worship of those cardinal principles that will remain immutable as long as the republic lasts, regardless of the fact whether parties discard them or not, then I believe that our mission is by no means ended but that, emerging from the apathy and lethargy that now envelops us, we shall be recalled to life resume the activities of our normal existence and the accomplishment of our historic existence."

The Republicans of Ohio are as much disgusted with the Taft manager who predicted "harmony" as those of us who have been deceived by the Weather Bureau prognostications.

"Most Loyal Assets."

The negroes of Washington City held a meeting a few days ago and adopted resolutions warning the Republican leaders that the nomination of William H. Taft, or any other man who holds similar views, for President will forfeit the good will and support of the voters of their race, who, they declared, are the "most loyal assets of the Republican party." They protest most vigorously against the nomination of Taft or "any other man who says that enfranchising our race was a mistake." They are incensed because Secretary had the temerity to tell the truth, and also because he fully concurred in President Roosevelt's treatment of the Brownfield affair. However, this soreness will wear off and they will be found in line when the election rolls around.

An American Noblewoman.

The affection in which Mrs. McKinley was held by the people of this country, has at all times been a subject of comment. It was due, according to some writers, to her long suffering from disease, which prevented her from enjoying to fullest extent, the many opportunities that opened to her. According to others, it was on account of her great bereavement in the loss of her husband, which created widespread sympathy. Still, after all that has been said, there seems to be another explanation which is more in accordance with the facts; and that is, that the affection in which Mrs. McKinley was held, sprang from recognition of her womanly qualities which were in every way exemplary.

In summing up her life, a writer in a Canton paper, evidently thoroughly acquainted with his subject, declares that Mrs. McKinley's home was first at all times; that devotion to her husband's success and welfare was her paramount object in life, for which she strove when most women would have felt compelled to devote attention to self. This writer says that Mrs. McKinley's loyalty to her husband caused her to forget her own suffering and many times to undertake things for which she really had not the strength. He sums up her life story by declaring her to be an exemplar of all womanly virtues, and an example for all women to follow.

When one carefully reviews Mrs. McKinley's residence in the White House, he finds much of that said above to have marked her career. It will be remembered that she was by common consent pronounced the most gracious mistress that the White House ever had.

Some Rooseveltian Comparisons.

President Roosevelt's recent correspondence with members of trades unions, in which he takes occasion to declare his friendship for the workingmen, naturally recalls to mind some other writings of Theodore Roosevelt. Before becoming a politician Mr. Roosevelt was an author, and it is interesting to compare the utterances of President Roosevelt in regard to workmen and mechanics with the utterances of Author Roosevelt on the same subject. Among other books written by Author Roosevelt is one entitled "Ranch Life and the Hunting Trail." On page 10 of that book Author Roosevelt says, speaking of the cowboys: "When drunk on the villainous whisky of the frontier towns they cut mad antics, riding their horses into saloons, firing their pistols right and left from boisterous lightheartedness. They are much better fellows and pleasanter companions than small farmers or agricultural laborers; nor are the mechanics and workmen of a great city to be mentioned in the same breath."

Workmen and mechanics of the great cities who feel that they are not worthy of being mentioned in the same breath with drunken cowboys "riding their horses into saloons, firing their pistols right and left from boisterous lightheartedness" will doubtless agree with President Roosevelt in his measure of "undesirable citizens."

Killing Their Chances.

Some parts of this country lack in humor. In South Dakota, for example, here are several towns in which the spinsters ask that all bachelors be heavily taxed until they reach the age of 40, and then chloroformed. It does not seem to strike the spinsters that they would be losing their only chance the method they advocate. Some of the old maids might stand a show of getting married if they dropped the chloroform idea. A man is always a bigger fool after 40 than before.

Definition of a Box Car.

Not all the instruction given to young railroad men is intensely serious. The following definition was recently offered to a beginner: "A box car belongs to the fowl family. During the spring and summer months it can be found in nearly every part of the country, its favorite haunts being railway tracks, and it is easy to capture. In the autumn, however, like certain other fowls, it goes into hibernation or flies to other climes. Scattered instances are known where specimens are captured during the autumn months. A lasso or a well greased switch crew is sometimes used in snaring the box car, but main strength is the best weapon. In any case the hunter must be very wary, as any noise like the fluttering of a waybill will make the quarry disappear. Some railways own large flocks of domesticated box cars, but they are carefully guarded during the closed season. The wild box car when caught and fairly well loaded becomes perfectly stationary."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Losing Game.

Not long ago a new Turkish bath establishment was organized, and as is the custom the promoters went out to form a regular clientele. The accounts of what a Turkish bath would accomplish were most glowing. Among the men approached was a German saloonist. His complaint was obesity, as was shown by the fact that he was below the average height and weighed 200 pounds.

"Now, it is like this," explained the masseur when the German had been inveigled to take a look into the bathhouse, "I will guarantee to take off two pounds at each bath."

"Vat!" exclaimed the kaiser's former subject. "Two pounds mit each bath! Ach, dot means von hundret baths and den no man. Nein, I dink I take dem not!"—Columbus Dispatch.

Quay and His Letters.

The late Senator M. S. Quay of Pennsylvania kept all the letters his constituents wrote to him asking for favors. He had stacks of them when his last fight for the senate came along. Then he sorted out the letters, eliminating those from people who were dead, and on the back of each letter wrote:

"Dear John or Bill—Do you remember when you wrote me this letter and do you remember that I did what was asked? I want your help now in my fight for the senate. Can I have it?"

The politicians in Pennsylvania say those letters, mailed to the original senders with Quay's request on the backs of them, had as much as any one thing to do with Quay's winning his fight.—Saturday Evening Post.

Who Fra Diavolo Was.

Fra Diavolo was the nickname given Michele Pezza, a celebrated renegade monk and Italian brigand, who was born in 1760. It should be noted that the opera of Auber has nothing in common with Fra Diavolo but the name. Pezza was first a stocking weaver, then a soldier in the Neapolitan army, then a soldier in the pope's service, and finally he became a monk, but was expelled. In the mountains of Calabria Pezza took to brigandage, and such was his notoriety and so great were his cruelties that the people nicknamed him Fra Diavolo. It is consoling to know that he was eventually executed in 1806.—New York American.

Getting Rid of His Cards.

The other day one of the members, raw to London, was introduced to a party of ladies in the dining room of the house of commons. As he left he gravely presented each lady with his card. A friend ventured to hint that this was carrying politeness too far for London customs. "Sure," was the reply, "it didn't matter. I had 200 of them printed. And I've changed my address anyway, so they're no use to me."—Leeds Mercury.

It Often Comes.

In a Scotch Sunday school the lady teacher, after speaking on the subject of death, asked, "And what comes after death?" Instantly a little girl called out eagerly, "A fight about the money."

Dr. PRICE'S
Cream Baking Powder
Made from Grapes

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests, and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate woman and child. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent to use both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles used in them, viz., pure vegetable glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels. Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

Nature's Great Invention

On de banks ob de Amazon, far away, far away, Whar Dr. Green gets August Flowers to dis day; Ah picked dose flowers in August in ole Brazil; Ah also use a Yankee, ah longs to be dar still.

August Flower is the only medicine (free from alcoholic stimulants) that has been successful in keeping the entire thirty-two feet of digestive apparatus in a normal condition, and assisting nature's processes of digestion, separation and absorption—for building and re-building—by preventing ALL irregular or unnatural causes which interrupt healthy and perfect natural processes and result in intestinal indigestion, catarrhal affections (causing appendicitis—stoppage of the gall duct), fermentation of unhealthy foods, nervous dyspepsia, headache, constipation and other complaints, such as colic, biliousness, jaundice, etc.

August Flower is nature's intended regulator. Two sizes, 25c, 75c. All druggists.

Last Day to File Suits.

Friday was the last day to file suits for the June term of the Bourbon Circuit Court, which convenes on Monday,
June 10, for a three weeks' term.
Twenty-nine Equity appearances and 24 ordinary appearances composed the new docket. The old docket is large 162 cases. There will be six murder cases to be called for trial at this term.

Orders in County Court.

Judge Denis Dundon entered the following orders in the County Court yesterday:

Ordered that Mrs. Anna E. Massie, executrix of W. W. Massie, file an inventory of said estate.

John J. Connelly appointed and qualified as executor of Catherine Connelly.

D. C. Lisle appointed and qualified as administrator of Samuel J. Turley.
Ordered that Bourbon Fiscal Court
meet June 4, 1907, (today).

Paris Academy Closes.

Paris Academy closed the school term with three days' examinations. Prof.
E. M. Costello, the principal, limits the attendance of his school and personally conducts all branches of instruction. The year just closed makes the twenty-second conducted by Professor Costello in preparatory instruction for collegiate courses.

A Big Fine.

In consequence of the rendering of a jury verdict to that effect, the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, of Missouri, was Saturday adjudged guilty of violating the anti-trust laws of Texas, convicted of having entered the State by fraud, fined $1,623,900, and the prayer of the State for ousting proceedings granted.

The basis of the present legal controversy is the anti-trust laws of 1890 and 1903. Of the penalties assessed by the verdict of the jury, J. P. Gruet, Jr., of St. Louis, will secure one-fourth of the fee that goes to the County Attorney, which is $387,375. The remainder of the judgment will go to the State, barring some $15,000, which will have to be paid to special attorneys employed to assist the State in prosecution.

Flooded With Old Coin.

Fearing that he would be murdered for the money he had stored away in his house, Willis Smith, of near Pulaski, Tenn., deposited the entire amount—$30,000 in quarters and half-dollars in a bank there, and the city is now flooded with the old coins.

Improvements For Near Future.

The Government Building, which will cost, including the site, $40,000, will be located at the corner of Eighth and Main streets. Immediately across
Main street is perhaps the oldest brick residence in the city, being the property of R. J. Neely, who, it is said, has plans drawn for the erection of a handsome two-story pressed brick structure, the upper floor arranged for living apartments while three spacious business rooms will compose the lower floor.

In the rear of the Government Building, corner of Eighth and High streets, the Hon. John T. Hinton, who owns the corner lot, has purchased of the Vincent heirs the adjoining property and contemplates the early erection of a handsome block, the corner room
to be occupied by the firm of H. J.
Groche & Co.

Sale Of Land.

Auctioneer M. F. Kenney sold yesterday for Master Commissioner Mann about 80 acres of unimproved land of the Jas. E. Kern estate, near Jacks-town, to James McClurce, agent, for $56.50 per acre, and 94 acres to Reynolds Letton for $406.83.

Fiftieth Anniversary.

The fiftieth anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. Dr. Henry M. Scudder was celebrated at the Presbyterian church in Elizaville, Saturday, where Dr. Scudder has continuously labored for half a century. The celebration lasted all day and was attended by many Presbyterian ministers from all parts of the State.

There were near a thousand people present. The program arranged for the occasion was begun by prayer and an eloquent and appropriate address by Dr. E. H. Rutherford of this city.
The members of the Elizaville church presented Dr. Scudder with a gold purse containing $500 in gold. A basket dinner was spread. Dr. E. H.
Rutherford, Mrs. R. J. Neely, Mrs.
Lon Scudder, Mrs. Marie Bedford, Mrs.
Mary C. Webb and Mr. and Mrs. W. H.
Harris attended from here.

Bourbon Crops Retarded.

Vegetation in this county has been much retarded by the unfavorable weather. All crops are badly in need of sunshine and warmer weather. It is said the cloudy and rainy weather is causing bad effect upon the wheat crop, subjecting many fields to the ravages of red rust. If the weather does not get warmer the damage to this crop will be great.

The Versailles Hospital.

The Woodford county Hospital, which was recently incorporated, has purchased a lot 140x232 feet on Brown avenue, in Versailles for a site for the new hospital building that is to be erected there. It is said that a wealthy woman of Woodford county will make the hospital a gift of the new building, which is to be modern and complete.
The hospital, which was established last fall in rented quarters by the women of the community, has been a great success and has conclusively established the need of such an institution there.

Site for Hose and Reel House.

The new branch hose and reel house for the City Fire Department will probably be located at corner of Main and Fourteenth street in the property recently vacated by Mr. William Rion and family, who have moved to their new home on Fifteenth street.

Death of Infant.

Little Irvan Franklin, the six-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. I. F. McPheeters, died Friday morning of stomach trouble. Much sympathy is expressed for this young couple, in the loss of their little son. "Suffer little children to come unto me for such is the kingdom of Heaven." After a short funeral service Saturday morning by Elder Carey E. Morgan the remains were taken to Winchester to be buried beside his grandmother, Mrs. J. T.

Death of Estimable Lady.

Mrs. Hildreth, the mother of Mr. Arthur Hildreth, the private secretary of Supt. W. H. Anderson, died at Elizaville, Sunday morning. Mrs. Hildreth was a most excellent Christian woman, and the many friends of her son in this city deeply sympathize with him in his great loss.

Rats! Rats! Rats!

Out of 350 young chickens raised by Mr. Henry Furman, he has about 20 left—rats did the rest. Mr. Phil Nippert, Sr., had 63 at the ice factory and the rats enjoyed 60 of them, he having only three left. Poisons seem to be a tonic for the breed of rats that now infest the city and county.

Hail Rain, Thunder, Lightning.

For over an hour Saturday afternoon a terrific storm of hail, rain, thunder and lightning raged over this city. Streets were flooded and at the corner of Main and Seventh streets the water rose over the pavements and flooded the business houses of Baldwin Bros., Geo. B. Mosley & Co., and the Singer Sewing Machine Company. Gardens and shrubbery were badly damaged by the remarkable storm. A bolt of lightning struck the paper cutter in the office of the Paris Democrat, narrowly missing Editor Wm. Remington and W. A. Hill, Jr.

The storm played havoc throughout the county, John Crow and Henry Towles, tenants on the farm of Thos. Henry Clay, Sr., came near being killed by lightning.

Both men were engaged in setting tobacco, and taking shelter under a tree it occurred to them that they were in danger of being struck by lightning when they left and stood against a wire fence.

The lightning struck another tree to which the wires of the fence were attached, with the result that both men received the shock, Crow being knocked senseless. His clothes were burned and his back badly scarred. He was removed to his home, where he remained unconscious for more than an hour.

Died Of Tuberculosis.

James W. Ashbrook, aged 66 years, residing on Cypress street, a gardener by occupation, died Sunday at 8 o'clock p. m. of tuberculosis. He is survived by his wife, one son, Charles Ashbrook, and one daughter, Mrs. Estes. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, Rev. Geo. W. Clarke officiating. The interment was at the Paris cemetery.

—We have just received a car of nut cannel coal suitable for cooking purposes. STEWART & CLARK.

What Mitchell Says:

Every day we hear some eustomer say about like this:

"Well, this certainly is the best Ice Cream Soda I ever drank" or "you can go anywhere you please and you will never get Cream like this."

If you have been eating or drinking in my store you know how good it is.

If you have never been fortunate enough to enjoy my cold drinks and Ices, you have missed real enjoyment and you can't afford to deny yourself the pleasure for the price it costs.

Lincoln No. 2

By GRANT LESTER.

Copyright, 1907, by Mary McKeon.

For a good many years people had said that Farmer Johnson's wife was head of his house and that he was a great inebriate to her. They had a farm just outside a thriving town, and had it been left to the wife there were many promising speculations she would have entered into. She was allowed to boss things around the farm, but when it came to outside matters the husband would take no risks. When his death finally took place, people looked to see Aunt Betty, as she was called, though only forty years old, carry out some of her ideas and make things hum. They were not disappointed. She went into strawberries and made money; she went into the dairy business and made money; she went into poultry and made money. It was said that there were not half a dozen men in the county who had her business sense.

Aunt Betty had a daughter nineteen years old, by name Prue. Prue did not run to business. She was simply a sweet tempered and lovable girl, who attended school in town in the winter and helped about the housework in summer. Up to the time of the father's death the mother had not "suffered aspirations" regarding Prue's future. It was tacitly understood that she would marry some young farmer and settle down to the humdrum life. But after the mother had become a business woman there were other plans for the girl. She was to be educated in music and other arts and made a lady of.

Just how Prue Johnson and Darius Livingstone first met is of no great consequence. He was twenty-two and had graduated as a lawyer and settled in the town. He was a slab sided young man, tall and angular and ungainly. There were a few people who said that he might know more than he showed, but the majority were of the opinion that he didn't know whether potatoes grew in the ground or on trees. If Prue held with the majority, it was rather singular that the young lawyer should have come driving out to the farm one June day to inquire for her. She was upstairs at the time, and it was her mother who received him. At the first glance she thought him the homeliest young man she had ever seen. After the second she took him for some peddler of music and went upstairs and said to Prue:

"There's a bean pole down stairs asking for you. I never saw such a gawk. He says his name is Livingstone. He's enough to scare a setting hen off the nest. Did you ever hear of any such fellow?"

"Why, ma, he's a lawyer in town, and we have met three or four times," replied Prue as her face flushed scarlet.

"A lawyer—humph! If you was to put a club in his hand he wouldn't know enough to pound sand. What's he here for?"

"Why—why, he said he might call some day. I don't see why you call him homely. I've heard lots of folks say that he reminded them of Abraham Lincoln."

The mother sniffed her contempt and turned away. Prue went down and received her caller, and though Mrs. Johnson was rather busy around the house and yard, she saw and heard enough to satisfy her that the young man was "interested." He remained for an hour or so and then left, and while his back was yet in sight Prue was properly warned.

"I shall have to have a son-in-law some day," added the mother, "but I want one whose looks won't sour all the milk and who knows a cabbage head from an old gander. Lawyer! Lawyer! Why, the poorest lawyer we've got in town would make your young man look like a bobtailed woodchuck if he had a case in court."

Prue ran away without talking back, and things quieted down for a week. Then the mother came home from town one afternoon to blurt out:

"Do you know what I heard this afternoon? At least half a dozen people told me that you and that scarecrow young lawyer were in love."

"Oh, mamma!"

"You needn't 'Oh, mamma' me. If you've fallen in love with any such man, I'm ashamed of you. Why, that red headed, cross eyed Sue Williams wouldn't look at him."

"We are not in love," stoutly protested Prue.

"Then what are you looking so red for?"

"Because—because we are simply friends. That is, he's awfully smart when you come to talk with him. I've been reading the life of Lincoln, and it's wonderful how much alike they are."

"Wonderful bosh! Abe Lincoln was smarter'n a whip as a lawyer."

"But Darius is going to be if he ever gets a case."

"Ever gets a case! I'd like to know who'd trust him with a case?"

The young man called again in about a week, ostensibly to make inquiries concerning the strawberry pest, and while Mrs. Johnson didn't order him off the farm, she gave him what she called a chilling reception. The fact that he didn't seem at all put out aggravated her, and but for a business engagement taking up her attention she would have had much to say to Prue. Four days later she came into the house to say:

"Well, when I dreamed of black hogs one night last week I knew that trouble would come. I've got a lawsuit on hand. It seems that those three cows I bought over in Delevan last week had a chattel mortgage on them. The holder of it wants $80 from me. I must either pay or be sued. I told him to sue as soon as he pleased, and he'll probably summon me tomorrow."

"And you'll have to have a lawyer?" asked Prue.

"Of course. I'm going to drive into town to see Lawyer Parsons."

"But why not give Mr. Livingstone the case?"

"Prue Johnson, do you take me for an idiot?" exclaimed the mother in astonishment. "Do you think I want to lose $80 and costs, besides $10 more for a lawyer? Folks around here think I'm a pretty smart woman, and I don't want to be made a laughingstock of. That bean pole of a young man would not know enough to cross examine an old cow."

Lawyer Parsons, who was the leading member of the bar in the town, was retained, and the expected summons was served next day. A week later the suit came on. During the interval young Livingstone drove out to the Johnson farm. Miss Prue had gone to town to do some shopping, and the mother was blunt and brusque. The budding attorney almost offered his services in the coming suit, and the look he received in reply lingered with him for many hours. When Prue got home she was told that there had got to be a stop to this sort of thing, but when she burst into tears and said she could not help it her mother was reasonable enough to reply that maybe she could not.

The girl went to town with the mother on the day of the suit. In the courtroom a shock of surprise awaited her. Darius Livingstone appeared as counsel for the complainant. Yes, he was there in all his dignity, and he didn't seem a bit frightened that it was his first case and that he was matched against one of the oldest and smartest lawyers in the county. He nodded to Prue and would have done the same to her mother, but she just then been engaged in whispering to her daughter:

"Prue Johnson, look over there! As true as you live your bean pole of a young man is going to take the case against me! That's another specimen of his cheek. You wait, however. When Parsons gets through with him there'll be only a grease spot left."

Surprise after surprise was the order of the day. The plaintiff really had a chattel mortgage on the cows. They had been driven away and sold. In buying them Mrs. Johnson had taken the seller's work. Her lawyer argued that this was customary, but "bean pole" brought in six witnesses to prove to the contrary. Mrs. Johnson was made to admit that she was a business woman and that she had never bought even a chicken without being guaranteed. A dozen errors were made in her case, and before it was concluded Mr. Parsons was made to look extremely foolish. The jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff, and Prue shed tears beneath her veil and realized that she would see no more of Lincoln No. 2. She was in despair when her mother walked up to the young attorney and held out her hand, saying:

"Sir, I am a blunt and plain spoken woman. You are lop shouldered and slab sided. You are as homely as a hedgehog in March, but you are a talker and are certain to make a good lawyer. If I ever have a son-in-law I hope he'll be one of the profession. No, don't make any excuses. You had a right to take the other side, and I hold no grudge against you. If you want to know how good cheese is made come out to the farm."

Mr. Livingstone did want to know. He had always been curious about it. He took early advantage of her offer, and at last reports he and Miss Prue had decided to go south on their wedding tour.

His Future Assured.

The telephone rang in a certain broker's office one morning this week, and the broker himself answered.

"Yes," said he, "this is it. I'm Mr. B. What can I do for you? Whom do you want, then? Oh, all right; hold the wire. Here, Jimmy, some one to talk to you."

Jimmy, a diminutive, towheaded office boy, approached and seized the receiver.

"Yep, dis is Jim. Oh, yep; hullo yerself. Sure, dat was him talkin'. Wot? Hully gee! Dat so? A'right—yep—goodby yerself."

"Say, Mr. B.," the diminutive one remarked to the broker, "dat was Eddy, de head office boy, an' he says ter me ter tell yer he resigns his job right now by de phone 'cause he don't like de way yer talked 't him yesterday. He says he kin live anyhow, an'—"

"All right," the broker interrupted. "The mistake he made was in not demanding my resignation. However, he'll own an office some day. We will now proceed with the day's business, James."—New York Globe.

Hans' Nightmare.

Venerer I got on a party and eat more dan four bologna sausages. I always don't sleep good dat night. Vell, I goes to de doctor's shop and tells him rust about how dat vas, und he said I haf de nightmare. Den he writes someidings in Swede on a piece of paper and sends me ofer to de hardware shop to get dat paper full of someidings. Vell, I says at minself, "When I vaste money dat vay my name ain't Hans Fritz von Splattzengatzmeyer." So I trows de paper on de street und starts home. On de vay I met a house mit a sign on de door: "Scarlet measles. Keep out." Den I goes along, und I met anudder house mit a sign on de door: "Small pox. Keep out." I thinks dat's a poety goot scheme, so I goes home und takes a paint brush und writes on my door: "Nightmare. Keep out." Und de nightmare don't bodder me since.

The Joke Was on Her.

A woman member of the bar in New York gives to our correspondent the following correspondence with the reservation that no names shall be quoted.

"I am one of the few women," she says, "who can see a joke even if aimed at myself. I do not feel that in this case I came off first best."

The first letter was from a man lawyer and was as follows:

Dear Miss Blank—We agree to the compromise as proposed in your favor of this date. Not because your client has a just right to such settlement, but from the fact that we do not care to open a contest with a woman lawyer.

To which this reply was sent:

Gentlemen—I note yours agreeing to a settlement, although I cannot congratulate you on your gallantry in begging the question. Like the original Adam, you seem inclined to hide behind a woman's petticoat.

And the following letter closed the correspondence:

Dear Miss Blank—If you will turn to the early pages of Genesis you will discover that Eve did not wear a petticoat.

—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Find the Answer.

A certain young man took his best girl to the theater. During the evening she complained of not feeling well, and they left before the show was over. He took her home, and when he said good night the girl was pretty sick. Next day it turned out that she had diphtheria. Then the young man began to wonder if he was booked for a siege with the disease too. He called on a physician he knew to ask about it.

The physician heard the young man's tale. "Well," said he at the conclusion of it, "I think your chances to catch the disease depend on how you said good night to the young lady."

The young man was quiet a moment. Then he said: "Doctor, I'm much obliged. If that's the case, I'm not in danger."

The young man went out. A minute later he stuck his head in the door. "Say, doc," he said, "diphtheria don't go very hard with strong, healthy young men, does it?"—Denver Post.

A Monster Rodent.

The Brazilian capybara is a large, stoutly built rodent. Imagine a rat weighing 280 pounds with a huge head, an upper lip a foot long and close set eyes and one has an idea of the beast. He is the largest of the rodent tribe and has harsh, coarse hair, more like bristles than fur. This hair is mixed black and yellow, of dingy appearance. In his native haunts the capybara has a huge, fat stomach which almost drags on the ground. He is a water loving animal and can dive and stay under for eight or ten minutes at a time. The jaguar of South America preys upon the capybara, and the Indians kill him for his flesh, which when smoked is said to be as delicious as a Kentucky ham, although it has a certain musky flavor. The capybara makes a sound when alarmed somewhat between a dog's bark and a pig's grunt. He was once called the hydrochous, or water hog, and lives on a vegetable diet.

Testing the Insane.

Sir Douglas Straight told an amusing story at the dinner of the Journeyman Hairdressers' Trade society. He remembered, when a young barrister, going into a barber shop to be shaved. He was a little startled to see the woman behind the counter staring at him from time to time through the glass door. When he got outside the shop a policeman said, "I am very glad to find you have come out," explaining that his anxiety was due to the fact that the barber came out of a lunatic asylum the previous week, and as he had been acting queerly again his relatives were wondering whether they would have to send him back to the asylum.—London Standard.

A Standing Rule.

Jones had just run over to see if Mr. and Mrs. Blank would go to the theater with them. Mrs. Blank was awfully sorry—she would so much like to go—but unfortunately Blank was out. Probably he was at the club. She would telephone. The following conversation ensued:

"213A Gerrard, please. Hello! Is this the—club? Is my husband there? Hello! Not there? Sure? Well, all right then. But hold on. How do you know? I haven't even told you my name."

"There ain't nobody's husband here—never!" was the wise attendant's reply.—London Tatler.

What the Noise Did.

Of the noise of London streets caused by the hackney coach Taylor, the old water poet, wrote: "It makes such a hideous rumbling in the streets by people's ears are stopped with the noise, whereby they are debarred of their edifying which makes faith so fruitless, good works so barren and charity as cold at midsummer as if it were a great frost. By this means souls are robbed and starved of their heavenly manna."

A Curious Fact.

"I have some very strong letters of introduction," said the caller.

"My friend," answered Senator Sorghum, "I don't rely too far on communications of that kind. A man will give you a letter of introduction describing you as possessed of every noble quality in human nature and in the next breath refuse to indorse your note for $20."—Washington Star.

A Bad Outlook.

Mother—Dorothy, I have to be scolding you all the time! Dorothy—Well, all I can say, mamma, is I'm sorry for the man who gets you for a mother-in-law.—Smith's Magazine.

A lazy man goes far, and he who shuns labor labors doubly. — Greek Proverb.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and testimonials. Address:

The Lining of His Cravat.

"You have often heard the question, 'Where a man's treasure is, there will his heart be also,' said a city detective. 'I saw an illustration of that not long ago on a railroad train. A detective employed by the railway company and I were seated near a countryman who adjusted his necktie every few minutes.

"That tie bothers the old man," I said to my companion.

"Don't think it's the tie," replied the railroad detective.

"Then he leaned forward and said to the farmer, 'Better take your money out of that necktie.'

"Who told you I had money in my tie?" demanded the farmer.

"The detective then explained that his actions in adjusting his necktie led to the supposition. The farmer admitted that he had chosen the tie as the hiding place for a number of bills.

"His idea was all right," concluded the detective, "but he couldn't keep his hands off the cravat."—Kansas City Star.

Qualities of the Oyster.

A San Franciscan has discovered a new method of cutting short recitals that promise to become too long winded. An acquaintance of his who has a local reputation as a bore was one day holding forth at some length when the Californian interrupted him with: "By the way, did I ever tell you the story of the oyster?"

On receiving a negative reply he continued:

"It seems that when oysters are taken from the sea they often open their shells so that the juice or liquid runs out. As this is undesirable, the experienced oyster gatherer has a tub of water close at hand into which the oyster is plunged as soon as it begins to open its shell."

"Well, and what then?" asked the other as the narrator paused.

"The San Franciscan smiled.

"Oh, after awhile the oyster learns to keep its mouth shut," he remarked quietly.—Exchange.

Different Names For Waves.

They have curiously different names for waves about the coast of Great Britain. The Peterhead folk call the large breakers that fall with a crash on the beach by the grim name of "Norraa" (Norway) carpenter. On the low Lincolnshire coast, as on the southwestern Atlantic fronting shore of these islands, the grandly long unbroken waves are known as "rollers." Among east Anglians a heavy surf, tumbling in with an offshore wind or in a calm, is called by the expressive name of a "slog," while a well marked swell, rolling in independently of any blowing, is called a "home." "There is no wind," a Suffolk fisherman will say, "but a nasty home on the beach." Suffolk men also speak of the "bark" of the surf, and a sea covered with foam is spoken of as "feather white." The foam itself is known as "spoon drift." So, in the vernacular, we have it, "The sea was all a feather white with spoon drift."

Long Hair a Mark of Honor.

In olden times excessively long hair was considered a mark of honor and rank. For many centuries long hair was in France the distinctive mark of kings. The ancient Persians and Parthians of high caste wore long, flowing hair, while the poorer classes were obliged to cut theirs short. Homer speaks of the long haired Greeks by way of distinction.

The Gauls considered long hair a mark of honor, but Caesar obliged them to cut it off in token of submission. Long hair was thought by the Franks to denote high birth, and the Goths looked upon it as a distinctive mark of culture and honor. Short hair was considered by nearly all the old nations to denote thralldom, and even now criminals have their heads shaved.—Denver Times.

What He Wanted.

"I'm glad you've waked up at last! I've been sitting here two full hours."

"Yes, but what do you want of me?"

"If you'll excuse me, you're sitting on my hat!"

Young Jones—Your daughter, sir, is worth her weight in gold!

Old Brown—Would you mind lending me $10 and taking her as security?

Pueblo Chieftain.

Mr. Meany—It's something dreadful. My wife is always asking me for money.

It's money, money, money, all the time.

Mr. Japson—Why, whatever does she do with all this money?

Mr. Meany—Oh, I don't know. I haven't given her any yet.

A Hard Case.

He—Do you think it would be foolish of me to marry a woman who was my intellectual inferior?

She—I don't know that it would be foolish, but it would be a difficult thing for you to do.

THE NEXT INSTANT HE DISAPPEARED.

He, in her little pink pinafore, had ridden about on our shoulders, the undisputed belle of the camp.

"Nannie," I said, "if something else were the reason, if it cowardice were merely the appearance, could you forgive it?"

Her lip trembled, but she looked up at me bravely enough. "Yes," she said—"yes, if there were anything else in the world; if he had— Oh, it is so hard to believe when one looks at him, and yet the paper told all about it and gave the official order that disgraced him."

I hesitated a moment, still uncertain as to whether it were best to let this girl know the truth about Francis Knowlton. And in that moment my opportunity was gone, for McNaon called from the other room, "Come on here; we're off," and we had to join the company assembled for an excursion to the ruins of Eldorado City.

It was one of the many jaunts that had been arranged to entertain some visiting school friends of Nannie's and, like most of our entertainments, included the whole neighborhood, for we are too few and too isolated for social subdivisions. All were there—Breach of Promise McNaon, the Remittance Man, the Lady of the Absent Husband, the Linger, the Man Who Invariably Went Armed, I, who— But this is not autobiography.

What was the gayety of our young guests, the cool moonlight and the very good supper that Knowlton's Chinese boy had provided the time passed pleasantly enough, although to me, of course, the ruins of Eldorado City were a familiar and not altogether amusing story. Yet when a coyote appeared in the open doorway of the old Golden Light dance hall and a string of bats came flitting from the entrance of Denny Monahan's tunnel I will con-

"It was my father's sword."

As he spoke Knowlton replaced the dented brass scabbard on the elk horns over his fireplace and turned to the grave eyed young girl who stood beside him.

"You see, Miss Marble," he went on, trying to smile away the tinge of bitterness in his voice, "I have no other heritage to cherish."

Where I stood the girl's low voiced reply was inaudible, but a dull flush crept over the young Englishman's clear cut features, and it seemed that he echoed her words, saying a little sullenly, "No; I do not wear it."

The sound of footsteps on the veranda called him to welcome other guests, and I joined Nannie Marble in straying about the rooms, furnished oddly enough for a New Mexican ranch house, yet eloquently descriptive of their owner's life. The battered photograph with its heap of dusty records, the well worn cloth of the softaire table and the many shelves laden with innumerable paper novels spoke plainly of the dead end of his present existence. The hunting trophies on the walls, the old cut crystal service on the sideboard, above all the many pictures and photographs, among them his father as general of division and himself as lieutenant of the guards, told that once at least he had lived otherwise, had been something other than a far straying "romantic man."

As we paused before the two portraits I knew that this thought was uppermost in Nannie Marble's mind, for ever since Knowlton's advent in the Blue Water country his love for her had been common knowledge. Yet she surprised me after a moment by saying very quietly, "Do you know why he is here?" and before I could reply answering herself: "He was cashiered for cowardice in the Boer war. Mrs. Loring told me. She showed me a paper that told about it."

There was a deep quiver of grief in her voice, and as she turned away her head for the first time I was certain of what I had for some time suspected—that if she had repulsed him it had been against the dictates of her own heart. It was hard for me to see her in distress, for I had been her father's comrade and had known and loved her since the days when old John Marble's quartz ledge had started the short lived boom at Eldorado City and Nannie was able to stand, and leaning on Loring's arm, to set out on the return journey. We found that the prolongation of our stay had nearly consumed our candles, and after a consultation the remaining bits were delivered over to the leader, and the rest walked in darkness. I was being detailed to close up the rear.

The windings of the passage left me for the most part in total obscurity, and I stumbled along, cursing myself that I had not told Nannie that truth concerning Knowlton which we men had long ago known—that it was his inheritance from a long line of port loving ancestors that had brought him down; that after long monotonous months of garrison duty at an outlying post an urgent appeal for aid from an entrapped scouting party had come at the moment when the demon in his blood had at last got the better of him. A subordinate had led out a relief expedition, and Knowlton had come to the scene.

As we turned at last into the straight tunnel I caught sight of two silhouetted figures that walked side by side just in front of me, talking in low tones. And as we approached the entrance they delayed their steps, and there came to me the voice of Nannie Marble, speaking very gently:

"No, no, I do not wish to be told what the real reason was. I have seen. I am sure it was not what that paper said. There is nothing else in the world that I would not trust the man I love to conquer."

Very gravely the man answered her. "Anything in the world now."

And together they passed out into the starlight.

The walls of the Acropolis at Baalbek are truly called cyclopean. The famous Trilithon, the largest stones ever used in building, measure respectively sixty-five, sixty-four and sixty-three feet in length, each block weighing about 750 tons. How these huge masses were accurately placed in position twenty feet above the ground is a problem which modern science, with all its appliances, leaves yet unsolved. Above them are Arab fortifications. The quarries whence these gigantic materials were obtained are among the most interesting features of Baalbek. Here may still be seen the method of work of the ancient quarrymen, stones vertically hewn lying almost ready to the hand of the builder. One of these stones, to which the Arabs give the name Hajar-el-Honla, measures sixty-nine feet in length and weighs 915 tons. M. de Sauley calculates it would take the united efforts of 40,000 men to put this huge block in motion. This quarry is now used as a necropolis by the inhabitants of Baalbek.—Sunday at Home.

Barrel Racing on Ice.

An exciting form of winter sport in which Canadian boys excel is barrel racing on the ice. Ordinary barrels, with their heads removed, are placed at regular intervals along the race course for about a quarter of a mile. Then at a given signal all the boys skate for the first barrel. Many reach it together, and as each skater must crawl through all the barrels in order to win it is to be imagined that there is quite a scramble for first turn. Sometimes a barrel wheels completely around while the boy is working his way through it, and when he comes out he is so confused that he skates off in the wrong direction. to write for our big FREE BICYCLE catalogue showing the most complete line of high-grade BICYCLES, TIRES and SUNSHIES at PRICES BELOW any other manufacturer or dealer in the world.

DO NOT BUY A BICYCLE from anyone, or on any kind of terms, until you have received our complete Free Catalogue illustrating and describing every kind of high-grade and low-grade bicycles, old patterns and latest models, and learn of our remarkable LOW PRICES and wonderful new offers made possible by selling from factory direct to rider with no middlemen's profits.

SEND ONE CENT WITHOUT a cent Extra! Try the Freight and allow 10 Days Free Trial and receive other liberal terms which no other house in the world will do. You will learn everything and get much valuable information by simply writing us a postal.

We need a Widespread Agent in every town and can offer an opportunity to make money to suitable young men who apply at once.

$8.50 PUNCTURE-PROOF TIRES ONLY $4.80

Regular Price $8.50 per pair. To introduce we will sell you a Sample Pair for Only $4.80 (CASH WITH ORDER $4.55)

NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES.

Result of 15 years experience in tire making. No danger from THORNS, CACTUS, PINS, NAILS, TACKS or GLASS.

Serious punctures, like intentional knife cuts, can be vulcanized like any other tire.

Two Hundred Thousand pairs now in actual use. Over Seventy-five Thousand pairs sold last year.

DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. That "Holding Back" sensation commonly felt when riding on asphalt or soft roads is overcome by the patent "Basket Weave" tread which prevents all air from being squeezed out between the tire and the road thus overcoming all suction. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C.O.D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. We will also send one nickel plated brass hand pump and two Sampson metal puncture closers on full paid orders (these metal puncture closers to be used in case of intentional knife cuts or heavy gashes). Tires to be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination.

We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. Ask your Postmaster, Banker, Express or Freight Agent or the Editor of this paper about us. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a small trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

COASTER-BRAKES, built-up wheels, saddles, pedals, parts and repairs, and prices charged by dealers and repair men. Write for our big SUNDAY catalogue.

DO NOT WAIT to buy a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It costs only a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

The Lining of His Cravat.

"You have often heard the question, 'Where a man's treasure is, there will his heart be also,'" said a city detective. "I saw an illustration of that not long ago on a railroad train. A detective employed by the railway company and I were seated near a countryman who adjusted his necktie every few minutes.

"That tie bothers the old man," I said to my companion.

"Don't think it's the tie," replied the railroad detective.

"Then he leaned forward and said to the farmer, 'Better take your money out of that necktie.'

"Who told you I had money in my tie?" demanded the farmer.

"The detective then explained that his actions in adjusting his necktie led to the supposition. The farmer admitted that he had chosen the tie as the hiding place for a number of bills.

"This idea was all right," concluded the detective, "but he couldn't keep his hands off the cravat."—Kansas City Star.

Qualities of the Oyster.

A San Franciscan has discovered a new method of cutting short recitals that promise to become too long winded. An acquaintance of his who has a local reputation as a bore was one day holding forth at some length when the Californian interrupted him with:

"By the way, did I ever tell you the story of the oyster?"

On receiving a negative reply he continued:

"It seems that when oysters are taken from the sea they often open their shells so that the juice or liquid runs out. As this is undesirable, the experienced oyster gatherer has a tub of water close at hand into which the oyster is plunged as soon as it begins to open its shell."

"Well, and what then?" asked the other as the narrator paused.

The San Franciscan smiled.

"Oh, after awhile the oyster learns to keep its mouth shut," he remarked quietly.—Exchange.

Different Names For Waves.

They have curiously different names for waves about the coast of Great Britain. The Peterhead folk call the large breakers that fall with a crash on the beach by the grim name of "Norrawa (Norway) carpenters." On the low Lincolnshire coast, as on the southwestern Atlantic fronting shore of these islands, the grandly long unbroken waves are known as "rollers." Among east Anglians a heavy surf, tumbling in with an offshore wind or in a calm, is called by the expressive name of a "slog," while a well marked swell, rolling in independently of any blowing, is called a "home." "There is no wind," a Suffolk fisherman will say, "but a nasty home on the beach." Suffolk men also speak of the "bark" of the surf, and a sea covered with foam is spoken of as "feather white." The foam itself is known as "spoon drift." So, in the vernacular, we have it, "The sea was all a feather white with spoon drift."

Long Hair a Mark of Honor.

In olden times excessively long hair was considered a mark of honor and rank. For many centuries long hair was in France the distinctive mark of kings. The ancient Persians and Puritans of high caste wore long, flowing hair, while the poorer classes were obliged to cut theirs short. Homer speaks of the long haired Greeks by way of distinction.

The Gauls considered long hair a mark of honor, but Caesar obliged them to cut it off in token of submission. Long hair was thought by the Franks to denote high birth, and the Goths looked upon it as a distinctive mark of culture and honor. Short hair was considered by nearly all the old nations to denote thralldom, and even now criminals have their heads shaved.—Denver Times.

What He Wanted.

"I'm glad you've waked up at last! I've been sitting here two full hours."

"Yes, but what do you want of me?"

"If you'll excuse me, you're sitting on my hat!"

Right in It.

Young Jones—Your daughter, sir, is worth her weight in gold!

Old Brown—Would you mind lending me $10 and taking her as security?

Pueblo Chieftain.

Not Extravagant.

Mr. Meanly—It's something dreadful. My wife is always asking me for money. It's money, money, money, all the time.

Mr. Japson—Why, whatever does she do with all this money?

Mr. Meanly—Oh, I don't know. I haven't given her any yet.

A Hard Case.

He—Do you think it would be foolish of me to marry a woman who was my intellectual inferior?

She—I don't know that it would be foolish, but it would be a difficult thing for you to do.

Heirlooms.

By Donald Kennicott.

Copyright, 1907, by Donald Kennicott.

"It was my father's sword."

As he spoke Knowlton replaced the dented brass scabbard on the elk horns over his fireplace and turned to the grave eyed young girl who stood beside him.

"You see, Miss Marble," he went on, trying to smile away the tinge of bitterness in his voice, "I have no other heritage to cherish."

Where I stood the girl's low voiced reply was inaudible, but a dull flush crept over the young Englishman's clear cut features, and it seemed that he echoed her words, saying a little sullenly, "No; I do not wear it."

The sound of footsteps on the veranda called him to welcome other guests, and I joined Nannie Marble in straying about the rooms, furnished oddly enough for a New Mexican ranch house, yet eloquently descriptive of their owner's life. The battered photograph with its heap of dusty records, the well worn cloth of the solitary table and the many shelves laden with innumerable paper novels spoke plainly of the deadly ennui of his present existence. The hunting trophies on the walls, the old cut crystal service on the sideboard, above all the many pictures and photographs among them his father as general of division and himself as lieutenant of the guards, told that once at least he had lived otherwise, had been something other than a far straying "remittance man."

As we paused before the two portraits I knew that this thought was uppermost in Nannie Marble's mind, for ever since Knowlton's advent in the Blue Water country his love for her had been common knowledge. Yet she surprised me after a moment by saying very quietly, "Do you know why he is here?" and before I could reply answering herself: "He was cashiered for cowardice in the Boer war. Mrs. Loring told me. She showed me a paper that told about it."

There was a deep quiver of grief in her voice, and as she turned away her head for the first time I was certain of what I had for some time suspected—that if she had repulsed him it had been against the dictates of her own heart. It was hard for me to see her in distress, for I had been her father's comrade and had known and loved her since the days when old John Marble's quartz ledge had started the short lived boom at Eldorado City and Nannie even now she would understand.

As we turned at last into the straight tunnel I caught sight of two silhouetted figures that walked side by side just in front of me, talking in low tones. And as we approached the entrance they delayed their steps, and there came to me the voice of Nannie Marble, speaking very gently:

"No, no, I do not wish to be told what the real reason was. I have seen. I am sure it was not what that paper said. There is nothing else in the world that I would not trust the man I love to conquer."

Very gravely the man answered her. "Anything in the world now."

And together they passed out into the starlight.

$8.50 PUNCTURE-PROOF TIRES ONLY $4.80

Regular Price $8.50 per pair. To introduce us we will sell you a Sample Pair for Only $4.80 (CASH WITH ORDER $4.55)

NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES.

Result of 15 years experience in tire making. No danger from THORNS, CACTUS, PINS, NAILS, TACKS or GLASS.

Serious punctures, like intentional knife cuts, can be vulcanized like any other tire.

Two Hundred Thousand pairs now in actual use. Over Seventy-five Thousand pairs sold last year.

DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. That "Holding Back" sensation commonly felt when riding on asphalt or soft roads is overcome by the patent "Basket Weave" tread which prevents all air from being squeezed out between the tire and the road thus overcoming all slippage. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C.O.D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and enclose this advertisement. We will also send one nickel plated brass hand pump and two Sampson metal puncture closers on full paid orders (these metal puncture closers to be used in case of intentional knife cuts or heavy gashes). Tires to be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination.

We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. Ask your Postmaster, Banker, Express or Freight Agent or the Editor of this paper about us. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a small trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

COASTER-BRAKES, everything in the bicycle line are sold by us at half the usual prices charged by dealers and repair men. Write for a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING A BICYCLE or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.

—Elder J. D. Waters has received a flattering call from the First Christian church of Asheville, N. C., which, however, he will not accept as he entered on his charge here last January for one year. Elder Waters is beloved by all who know him and has won a place in the hearts of the people, irrespective of church affiliation. Before his year closes we hope to make it so pleasant for him, through the influence of some of our young ladies—the best on earth, that it will be impossible for him to tear himself from us.

—The commencement exercises of the Millersburg Military Institute began Saturday evening with a minstrel at the gymnasium by the cadets. Despite the weather the spacious auditorium was well filled and the work was indeed good. The local hits, the funny jokes, solos and choruses were received with storms of applause; the dancing in the second act and the farce in the third were equally good. The whole was one of the best entertainments ever given here and we are sorry we cannot devote more space to it.

Sunday morning at 10:45, Dr. Gilbert Kelly, of Lynchburg, Va., preached the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class at the Methodist church. Dr. Kelly is not a stranger in our midst, and it suffices to say that his discourse was an able one. The music was one of the principal features of the day, made up of Capt. A. C. Klockseim's chorus class and the church choir. Dr. Kelly delivered another able discourse in the evening at 7:45.

Water Spout At Carlisle.
A water spout struck Carlisle and vicinity Saturday afternoon, accompanied by heavy hail and a terrible electrical storm, raising the streams higher than ever known and doing damage to the extent of several thousand dollars. All houses along the stream which runs through that city were flooded and the inmates of many had to be carried out in buggies.

Water flooded the houses to the depth of from one to three feet. Many hogs, calves and chickens were drowned and outhouses upturned and washed away and much fencing destroyed.

Dorsey Bros. & Fisher lost several thousand feet of lumber, it being washed from their yards. The tobacco warehouse of W. J. Reed was flooded, causing a loss to his tobacco of $1,000. Water completely covered the tracks of the Louisville & Nashville railroad for miles and delayed trains for several hours until the water receded and the track could be cleared of rubbish and mud.

Spanish War Veterans.

The number of men that served in the late war with Spain have formed an organization in Lexington, known as the United Spanish War Veterans. Any man that holds an honorable discharge from the United States Army and served in 1898, or in any of the Philippines insurrections up to July 4, 1902, are eligible to membership. The organization will hold their next meeting in the Jackson Hall on South Limestone Street, Wednesday, June 5, 1907, at 8 p. m. We wish all veterans that live here in Paris to attend our next meeting.

Speaking Yesterday.

Senator Elliston, missed connection and did not show up to speak to the farmers yesterday, but in his stead Hon. C. M. Thomas made a most excellent address, which was enthusiastically received by the crowd. There are few better speakers than Mr. Thomas.

Offer to Buy.

The American Tobacco Growers' Association for the entire 1906 crop, which has been pooled and of which none has been sold. It is believed that the growers have succeeded in beating the trust in the fight for higher prices.

Tremendous Crowd.

There were from 12,000 to 15,000 visiting Confederate veterans in Richmond, Va., and from 50,000 to 60,000 sightseers at the meeting of the Grand Camp last week. A silver loving cup was presented to Dr. J. Williams Jones, Chaplain General of the United States Confederate Veterans.

Court Day.

Very small crowd in town yesterday and little trading done. No cattle on the market and about a dozen mules. Thos. McClintock and Sons sold five mules for $1,120.

An Obliging Man.

Heine (at the Village barber's)—I say, do you know why this man's shop is hung all over with sacred pictures? Beine—Oh, yes; that is for the convenience of his customers, so that they may call on all the saints when he shaves them.—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Orchestra Tuning Explained.

Doubtless many theater goers have wondered why it is a practice of orchestra musicians to make their appearance so far ahead of the time of beginning the performance and sit in their seats with nothing to do. Then, at a seeming given signal, all hands begin to "tune up," torturing the ears of the early arrivals with a series of squeaks and scrapes. The mystery was explained by an orchestra leader the other day. "The instruments have to be in accord with the temperature of the house," said he. "There may be several degrees difference between the temperature of the music room below stage and the house itself. If we tuned our violins downstairs they would all be flat when we take our places in the orchestra. For that reason we come upstairs earlier and let our instruments get the house atmosphere before the actual tuning begins."—New York Press.
